Financial Statement

Present Condition of the United States Treasury.

THE RECEIPTS AND EXPENSES.

An Increase in the Public Debt During the Month of Over a Million Dollars Owing to Pension Disbursements—Other Dispatches From the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The public debt statement, just issued from the treasury department, shows an increase of $1,017,311 during the past month of July. That there was an increase is due to unusually heavy disbursements during the month. Pension disbursements were three-quarters of a million heavier than in July last year, and expenditures for public works, such as river and harbor improvements and public buildings, were nearly five millions greater than in July, 1888.

The total debt to-day less cash in the treasury amounts to $1,077,663,932; the net cash in the treasury is $65,857,090, against $71,484,042 a month ago. National bank depositories to-day hold $48,930,763 of government funds, or about $1,500,000 less than on July 1.

The gold fund balance in the treasury has decreased about $4,500,000 during the past month and to-day amounts to $182,218,163; and the silver fund balance, exclusive of 6,000,000 trade dollar bullion has increased only $100,000 during the month, and to-day amounts to $26,602,015.

Government receipts during July aggregated $31,886,200, half a million more than in July last year. Customs receipts, in round numbers amounted to $19,000,000, against $19,500,000 in July 1888; and internal revenue receipts for the past month were $10,898,735, or a million and a quarter more than in July a year ago.

Expenditurs during the last month were $11,998,593, or five and three-quarter millions more than in July last year.

The Black Diamond Seizure.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The reported seizure of the English sailing vessel Black Diamond by the revenue cutter Rush, has not caused the amount of excitement among the officials of the state, navy and treasury departments that such an incident might be expected to create. Beyond the brief dispatch of Tuesday from the commander of the Rush reporting the seizure of the Black Diamond, the treasury department has received nothing concerning the matter.

Within the past ten days half a dozen letters have been received from the commanders of the revenue vessels on the sealing grounds, but none of these give any information concerning the movement of sealers or the condition of matters around Behring straits. Some of these letters were dated as late as July 1. They relate to nothing but routine business matters. Acting Secretary Wharton said to a United Press reporter that the state department had received no definite information about the seizure. He thought that the British legation at Washington would lay the matter before the department in a month or so.

Just Like Mellean Man.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Consul A. C. Jones, at Chin Kiang, China, in a report to the state department of an official visit to Nan King, makes the following statement: "On my departure I had to conform to another custom, no less obligatory, which was to fee everybody from the two Mandarins in attendance to the guides, conductors and coolies who accompanied me everywhere, to the amount of sixty-five Mexican dollars. I merely mention this that the department may be fully informed of the customs of China, and as my visit was an official one, to have it allowed to me if deemed necessary and proper."

A Fine Point in Law.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Acting Secretary Batcheller, of the treasury, has disapproved the opinion of Solicitor Hepburn in the matter of Chinese employed as servants on the United States steamship Alert and other vessels. The solicitor held that these Chinese were entitled to admission to this country as enlisted men in the navy. Secretary Batcheller holds that under the Chinese exclusion act they are debarred from admittance to this country.

Responsibility of a U. S. Treasurer.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Probably the largest receipt ever given for an amount of money in this country, passed from J. N. Huston, treasurer of the United States to J. H. Hyatt, ex-United States treasurer, at the treasury department yesterday. The amount on the face of the receipt was $771,434,329.45¼, and it was for this sum that Mr. Hyatt was responsible to Mr. Huston when he relinquished the office of United States treasury.

Statistic Agents Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. — Charles Kirchhoff, Jr., of New York, has been appointed a special agent of the census office to collect statistics of copper, lead and ores; John Birkinbine, of Pennsylvania, a special agent to collect statistics of iron ores and H. K. Carroll, of New Jersey, a special agent to collect church statistics.

Hung Himself in Jail.

READING, Pa., Aug. 2.—Abraham Finklone, aged 26 years, accused of setting fire to the Reading Lumber company's property four times, causing $30,000 damage, hanged himself yesterday in jail.

Death of a President.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—A dispatch to The Times-Democrat from San Juan Del Sur announces the death of Evarsto Garazo, president of Nicaragua.

THE PRESIDENT AT HOME

But He is Too Busy to See or Talk With Interviewers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—A few minutes after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon a healthy sun-burned trio stepped from a private car at the Baltimore and Ohio depot and entering the president's carriage were whirled swiftly to the White House. They were President Harrison, Private Secretary Halford and Secretary of the Treasury Windom, and they had just returned from Deer Park. The president was looking much better. He has enjoyed the slight rest very much, and feels much better able to look after the business which has accumulated during his absence.

The trip from Deer Park was devoid of incident and was made as rapidly and as comfortably as possible. The president will devote the greater portion of the three ensuing working days Friday, Saturday and Monday to consultation with his cabinet officers, and will again leave the city on Tuesday morning going to Bar Harbor, where he will remain a few days. Civil Service Commissioner Roosevelt called at the White House soon after the arrival of the presidential party, and had a long consultation with Private Secretary Halford. The president expects to be quite busy during the next few days, and it is doubtful if any interviews are granted save to cabinet officers, senators and members, unless by special appointment.

It is known that the money is subject to the draft of the Philadelphia committee. Mayor Hart says: "There is no hitch at this end. Pilgrims' Monument.

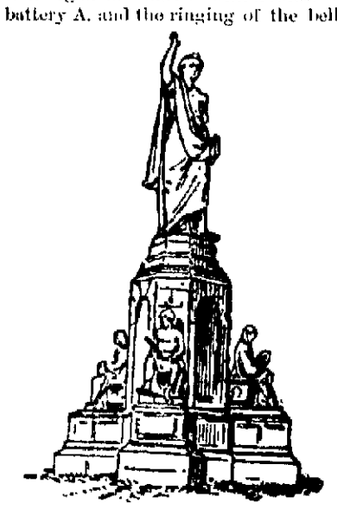
Imposing Dedicatory Ceremonies at Plymouth, Mass.

THE WORK OF YEARS FINISHED,

Our Forefathers Remembered By a Statue Which Cost Two Hundred Thousand Dollars—Many Prominent People Present—The Whole Affair Ends in Feasting and Speech.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Aug. 2. — The grand National monument in honor of the pilgrims was dedicated yesterday. The sons and daughters of Plymouth were here in great numbers. The weather of the early morning was unpropitious, and it was necessary to view the parade from beneath umbrellas, a heavy shower prevailing. The celebration began at sunrise with a salute by battery A, and the ringing of the bells.



THE PLYMOUTH MONUMENT.

The morning trains brought large numbers of strangers, and a great throng surrounded the monument at 9:30 o'clock, when the dedicatory exercises were carried out by the Masonic Grand Lodge according to the ritual of their order. These exercises were very interesting. The band rendered a choral by John K. Paine, following which the song of "Praise," written by R. W. Thomas Power, was sung by the Temple quartette.

Following the song came the request of the Pilgrim society, ex-Governor Long; the response of the grand master, Henry Endicott; proclamation by the grand marshal, George H. Rhodes; reading of scripture selections by grand chaplain, Rev. Charles Skinner; prayer by the grand chaplain; report on the examination of the monument and libations of corn and wine by the junior and senior grand wardens, respectively. Libation of oil by Deputy Grand Master Samuel Wells was followed by the invocation by the grand chaplain. Grand Master Henry Endicott then delivered an address. The entire assembly then sang an appropriate closing hymn, by R. W. Thomas Rower, to the tune of "America." The exercises concluded with a proclamation by the grand marshal, benediction by the grand chaplain and the pilgrim chorus by the band.

Meantime the procession had been forming and at 11 o'clock moved in seven divisions over an extended route.

At the completion of the parade the officers and members of the Pilgrim society, with the orator, poet and invited guests, took their places in the great dining tent, and the feast provided for the occasion was discussed for an hour. Then ex-Governor Long arose and introduced the orator of the day, Hon. W. C. P. Breckenridge.

Mr. Breckinridge's oration was a superb effort. In closing he said: "My countrymen, the chiefest merit of those to whose memory that monument has been erected was their loyalty to the truth. This is the noblest attribute of man, that he can love truth supremely. The truth as we see it to be loyal to that truth is our supremest duty."

John Boyle O'Reilly, the poet of the occasion, was then introduced and read his poem. After the reading of the poem addresses were made by Lieutenant Governor Brackett, on behalf of the state; Hon. George F. Hoar, Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, Hon. William Cogswell, Hon. A. E. Morse, Hon. William T. Davis, Hon. Frederick T. Greenhalge and others.

The foundation stone of the monument was laid with impressive ceremonies on August 2, 1859, by Governor N. P. Banks and Salmon P. Chase. It is located on one of the highest hills of the town, northwest on the rock on which the pilgrims landed and west of the anchorage of the Mayflower. Completed, it has cost over $200,000, collected from all parts of the country. It is of solid granite throughout, and consists of an octagonal pedestal rising to the height of forty-five feet. Upon the summit stands the figure of Faith, thirty-six feet high, one foot resting on Plymouth rock. In the left hand is an open Bible, while the uplifted right hand points heavenward.

The pedestal has four large and four small faces. Upon the former are tablets bearing the names of the founders of the colony and other important memoranda. From the smaller faces project four buttresses, upon each of which is a figure of heroic size, representing, with the figure of Faith on the summit, the principles of the original colonists. These figures are Morality, Education, Freedom and Law. On the faces of the pedestal, at the feet of the figures, are tablets representing the embarkation at Delft Haven, the signing of the social compact in the cabin of the Mayflower, the landing at Plymouth and the signing of the first treaty with the Indians.

The figure of Faith was a gift from the late Oliver Ames and cost $82,000. The sum of $10,000 was appropriated by the state legislature toward the figure of Morality, and congress gave $15,000 for that of Freedom. Education was the gift of Roland Mather, and Law is a monument to the liberality of the general legal fraternity all over the United States. The inscription on the main shaft reads: "National monument to the forefathers erected by a grateful people in remembrance of their labors, sacrifices and sufferings for the cause of civil and religious liberty."

LABOR TROUBLES.

Italians Indulge in a Riot Near Beaver, Pennsylvania.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 2—About 500 Italians employed by the Pittsburg, Lake Erie and Western railway on construction work near Beaver, struck yesterday for an increase of wages. The refusal of a few track laborers to join the strikers caused several small riots during the day. Superintendent Holbrook, of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie railway, telegraphed to Sheriff Welsh that serious trouble was anticipated, as the Italians were drinking and becoming very disorderly and to be prepared to suppress any outbreak.

Late last night a telephone message from Beaver was received, stating that a riot had occurred, during which Antonio Costinello was killed, two Italians fatally injured, another shot in the leg and several others were badly beaten. After the fight, nearly all of the strikers went up the railroad for the purpose of obstructing the tracks to prevent trains from running. A sheriff's posse had just arrived and another outbreak was feared.

Coke Workers Out.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—A special from Connellsville, Pa., says: The mass meeting of coke workers at this places yesterday afternoon was attended by about 3,000 men. Resolutions were passed unanimously to remain out on a strike until their demands were acceded by the operators. The strikers then marched in a body to the Trotter works and endeavored to induce the men at work to join the strike. It is known that the men working at four large works in this vicinity will soon join the strike.

A Scottdale, Penn., special says: That the works now idle by the strike include over 3,500 ovens and give employment to about 6,000 men, or about one half the coke workers in the Connellsville region. It is reported that E. A. Humphreys, of the Fountain works, at this place, who has large contracts, will accede to the demands. The leaders of the strike are very confident of success, claiming that it is a question of bread with them. At a meeting of the general committee yesterday arrangements were made to carry on a long struggle.

RAN ON A ROCK.

Nine Hundred Passengers Rescued from a Sinking Steamer.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The steamer St. Lawrence, the finest of the Thousand Islands Steamboat company's line of boats ran on a rock off Hog island in the Canadian channel yesterday, and is going to pieces. She had on board an excursion party of about 900 people, all of whom were taken off without accident, and are now encamped on the shores of the adjoining islands, until a steamer can be sent to take them off.

The boat left Clayton at 11 a. m. The steamer Maynard accompanied her with one hundred people of the excursion party, who could not get aboard the St. Lawrence. Many of the passengers on the St. Lawrence were at dinner when the boat struck a rock and began to settle. They hurried on deck but no panic occurred. The Maynard helped to get the St. Lawrence's passengers off. Capt. Estes, of the St. Lawrence, is an old officer and has a fine reputation. He was trying to cross from the narrow to the main channel when the rock was struck.

Still Storm Tossed

And Further Damage Caused By the Floods.

CROPS ARE BADLY INJURED.

Factories Flooded and Business Almost Entirely Suspended — Another Great Dam in Danger of Breaking—Effects of the Storm in Other Localities.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 2.—For the last six days it has rained almost steadily here. At times very hard. Much damage is reported and crops are badly injured in the outlying districts. On Grand street the water flooded the basements. The factories were all flooded and compelled to shut down. The streams are badly swollen. The Connecticut river is rising rapidly.

It is reported that the dam of the Metropolitan Wringer company, at Middlefield, has gone down. Forty feet of the bank of the Air line railroad near here is washed out. The Valley railroad this side of Chester is washed out, and no trains are running on either road. Telegraph and telephone wires are down. In one hour one and one-half inches of rain fell.

A large force of men are watching the main dam. If it goes out the water will carry everything with it to the Connecticut river, eight miles away. There are washouts on the Air line road at Cabalt and Codfish crossing, and trains are sent around via Hartford.

A landslide covered the Valley railroad at Straits for fifty feet and eight feet deep. Telegraph poles were carried away and the track washed out. Highways are badly damaged. Although the loss to property in this section is large, no lives have been lost.

The recent heavy rains caused Beaick lake, in Middlefield, to rise so high that it overflowed the dam and swelled the stream which is its outlet to such an extent as to carry away a number of bridges and small dams along the stream. Several grist mills and other structures were wrecked and the highways badly flooded.

The Worst is Over.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 2.—No further damage by the flood has been reported, although it rained hard at intervals during the morning. The excitement has considerably abated and it is believed that the worst is over. The fire commissioners have offered the use of the fire engines to pump out cellars. The West Jersey street bridge is considerably damaged. The total damage caused by the storm and flood within the city limits is about $15,000.

River Flowing Down a Street.

BLOOMFIELD, N. Y., Aug. 2.—It rained heavily again yesterday morning, causing the water of the Second river and branches to rise considerably, although they were already full to overflowing. A stream has been formed by the overflowing of the river at Fritz's dam and the course is directly through the business section of Glenwood and in the center of the town. If the rain continues the property along the river will sustain serious damage.

Big Washouts.

SUMMIT, N. J., Aug. 2.—Considerable amount of damage has been done by the storm and flood in this vicinity. The highways were washed out until they were impassable. Between Chatham and Summit there is a large washout in the gorge on the Delaware and Lackawanna road.

FORMING THEIR LAWS.

Proceedings of the Constitutional Conventions of the New States.

SIOUX FALLS, S. Dak., Aug. 2.—The South Dakota constitutional convention held a session last night to receive the report of the committee which had just returned from Bismarck. The report embraces all the details of division of assets and liabilities, and will be considered to-morrow.

A resolution was introduced providing that elections for state officers and the legislature be held in even years when the county and congressional elections take place. This will involve a change in the constitution, which provides that state officers shall be elected for two years. To bring all elections in one year the first term will need to be either shortened or lengthened. If this change should be accepted others will doubtless be attempted.

Subsidies Forbidden.

OLYMPIA, W. T., Aug. 2.—Yesterday's discussion in the constitutional convention was on the clause for or against allowing countries to grant subsidies. The section forbidding all subsidies was finally adopted. An amendment that this should not be construed to prevent a grant of right of way and terminal facilities to railroads was also beaten, the vote being 31 ayes to 41 noes. The convention then took up the report of corporations other than municipal, but adjourned without any vote being taken.

The Official Oath.

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 2.—The constitutional convention, after a brisk debate, retained the words, "So help me God," in official oaths. The section fixing responsibility for fires caused by railway locomotives' sparks was carried by a tie vote after much opposition. The section providing for free railway transportation of state officials and legislators was discussed without action.

Stung by Bees.

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Jackson Graves, an elderly man, a well known politician in this section, is lying at the point of death as a result of being stung by a swarm of bees.

FRIDAY. - - - AUGUST 2.

THE Ohio Democratic editors have let up on Blaine to devote their barking to Foraker. What a thing it is to be great.

ON his arrival in Cincinnati, Saturday night, Mr. Halstead will be given a grand reception, in which all the Republican clubs of the city will participate. This will be the opening of Mr. Halstead's candidacy for U. S. Senator.

DR. BROWN-SEQUARD, of Paris, has a disciple in this country, Dr. Hammond, a distinguished physician of Washington. If there is any virtue in this elixir of life, what an awakening there will be among the dry bones, and what a clamoring there will be among the old maids for the regenerating elixir.

IT is strongly suspected that Blythe, the Cincinnati murderer, had an accomplice in the killidg of Surgeon General Jones. Can it be possible that Foraker instigated the murder for political effect? —Marion Mirror.

There is no excuse for an insinuation like the above, and it is a descension to the lowest depths of partisan journalism. Besides being mean, it is utter damphoolishness.

Now that John L. Sullivan has been arrested on a requisition from the governor of Mississippi, what will be done with him? The great bruiser is already weakening, when about to be confronted with the majesty of the law, and is pleading innocent of the knowledge that he was fighting on Mississippi soil. By the way, what is to become of Kilrain? Is the punishment of defeat severe enough?

Didn't Have a Ticket.

A funny incident happened recently on the Providence division of the Old Colony railroad. A large, raw boned, good natured man entered the car as the train held up at the Roxbury station. The car was crowded, and people were standing. The new comer stopped suddenly beside a seat which was occupied by a young lady, who was buried in a novel, and beside her reposed a pet pug dog. The other passengers had stood from Boston to this point without protesting, but the latest arrival took in the situation at a glance, and said mildly:

"I would like to sit down, if you please."

The young woman looked up dreamily from the book, and replied, with dignity:

"The seat is engaged."

"By the dog?"

"Yes."

"Has the dog a ticket?"

No answer.

"Oh, I'm sorry he hasn't a ticket, because I'll have to bounce him off the train."

And without a moment's hesitation the dog was lifted by the nape of the neck to the window and dropped to the ground, and the vacant seat was taken by the stranger.

The young woman was paralyzed for a moment.

The train was only moving slowly as it left Roxbury, and the pug was not harmed, scampering off for dear life. His mistress, as soon as she grasped the situation, screamed to the approaching conductor to stop the engine so that she might recover her pet. The conductor was soon informed as to the cause of the sensation, and quietly told the young woman that she might get off at the next station if she wished to and hunt for the dog. She did so, to the delight of the crowded car.—Boston Cor. New York Tribune.

Good to Travel On.

There are three trades or avocations that afford those engaged in them opportunity to travel and see the world, and these the printers, the coopers and the barbers. In either case a man, master thereof, can visit any portion of this country and always be certain of work. The typo can walk into any English printing office in the country, or the world, for that matter, and earn his supper. He can shift from Maine to California, from Manitoba to Florida, and, wherever he goes, find work. He needs no letters of credit, none of recommendation, for he has the available knowledge. The same is true of the cooper. Where barrels are to be put together there he can find employment. And what with beer barrels, flour barrels, whisky barrels and sugar barrels, there are always barrels to make. Likewise the barber. Let him walk into a shop in Portland, Ore., or Portland, Me.; into one at New Orleans or Duluth, it matters not, a good barber can as easily shave the attenuated cheek of the Yankee as the dark visage of the Creole, and need never want employment.

The clerk, the cashier, the salesman, the bookkeeper, the writer, all must have longer time to manifest their capabilities, must have a measure of acquaintance, must have that which we know as confidence; but these three, the printer, the barber and the cooper, need no character from their last employer.—Toledo Journal.

Hanged for Wife Murder.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 2.—William Gaskins, colored, was hanged yesterday at Deland for the murder of his wife a year ago. He made a speech on the scaffold and then gave the signal for the drop to fall. His neck was broken. He had previously confessed his crime. The governor has reprieved the condemned murderer, Jacob Hammond, on the ground of insanity.

Tooth Present.

In Iceland, that country of gentle, primitive customs, from time immemorial it has been the fashion to present to lad or lassie, when the first baby tooth appeared, a lamb to be his or her very own, cared for and tended as no other pet could be, and never to be parted with.

There comes to us in a pretty story concerning the ways and manners of that sturdy, truth loving and warm hearted people account of such an offering to the bailiff's son. A winsome, soft eyed creature was Botna, the queen of the lamb flock. The pet grew apace, as did the frolicsome owner, and when he was 10 years old, a hardy shepherd lad, Botna had become old, toothless and lame. She could no longer go away to pasture with the herd, or eat her fill of grass, even in the pleasant midsummer weather. Her faithful young master was, however, mindful of Botna's needs. He had not forgotten that every year she had given him a little lamb, and in her old age a corner was given to her in the family living room, where she could see familiar faces and hear the voices of her best friends. Many times a day she was fed from a bottle, and was never taken out for fresh air unless the day was mild and the air balmy. Fortunate Botna!—Harper's Bazar.

Treatment of Cancer.

There appears to prevail among the laity a belief that the cure of cancer is seldom effected by the use of the knife, and that, when it is used, the disease is quite certain to reappear. At the recent congress of German surgeons a number of them told of the after results of operations for the removal of cancers from the tongue and throat. In one instance the whole tongue was removed from a patient twenty years ago, and the cancer never returned. Another patient first had the left side of his tongue removed, and, as the disease reappeared, he was again operated upon and the other side taken out. That was between five and six years ago, and yet since that time he has remained perfectly well. Professor Kuster, of Berlin, presented a case of carcinoma of the tongue upon which he operated ten years ago, and which has not returned since. Professor Von Bergmann exhibited two patients; one was a case operated upon two years previously, and the other four years before; the disease had not returned. As for carcinoma of the throat, several patients were presented who had had the entire larynx removed, and now, several years after the operation, there had been no signs of a recurrence of the disease.—Boston Herald.

A Flannel Shirt Exchange.

"You cannot imagine how the flannel shirt business of our store has grown in the past few years," said a trusted clerk of one of Boston's largest firms. "Two years ago three clerks were enough to handle all the trade in flannel shirts we had. Now I have six good men under me, and the work is all they can do. Everybody is wearing flannel shirts now, and our sales amount to more than 35,000 shirts a year.

"You know how a flannel shirt will shrink? I have a plan which will not only make a man's flannel shirt fit him all the time, but will enable him to come out with a new style shirt every two days. My Flannel Shirt Exchange will take a shirt that is too small for a man from washing and give him one a size longer of the same quality for the small sum of 25 cents, provided the shirt he brings in is clean. Thus a man with a 30-inch torso can get the shirt of the 32-inch man, and give his out to the 28-inch man, while the 32 inch man will take that which belonged to him of 37 inches, and so on up to the largest."—Boston Globe.

Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The pathologists of the New York city health department, in their report on the prevention of tuberculosis, specially emphasize the following facts: First, that tuberculosis is a distinctly preventable disease; second, that it is not directly inherited; and, third, that it is acquired by the direct transmission of the tubercle bacillus from the sick to the healthy, usually by means of the dried and pulverized sputum floating as dust in the air. The measures, then, which are suggested for the prevention of the spread of tuberculosis are: First, the security of the public against tuberculous meat and milk, attained by a system of rigid official inspection of cattle; second, the dissemination among the people of the knowledge that every tuberculous person may be a source of actual danger to his associates, if the discharges from the lungs are not immediately destroyed or rendered harmless; and, third, the careful disinfection of rooms and hospital wards that are occupied, or have been occupied, by phthisical patients.—Boston Herald.

The Duke of Wellington.

"The duke, being asked how he had succeeded in beating Napoleon's marshals, one after another, said: 'I will tell you. They planned their campaigns just as you might make a splendid set of harness. It looks very well and answers very well until it gets broken, and then you are done for. Now, I made my campaign of ropes. If anything went wrong I tied a knot and went on.'"

This, too, is a very characteristic story: "When asked what was the best test of a great general he replied: 'To know when to retreat and to dare to do it.'"

Here is another anecdote:

"The duke used to say that he attributed his success in some measure to always being a quarter of an hour earlier than he was expected, and that the wise course in action is to attack your enemy at the moment he is preparing to attack you."—Sir William Fraser's Reminiscences.

A Living Example.

Little Johnnie—Well, dad, I met an old beggar today, and he told me he used to save every cent he got when he was young.—Epoch.

CATCHING CODFISH.

A GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF THEIR CAPTURE AND CURE.

The Trip Was Better for a Sick Man Than Six Months of Doctoring—Handling the Shining Beauties from the "Kid" to the Salted Pile.

On the right and left of the fisherman as he stands at the rail are pegs driven into and extending some two inches above the rail. These are the "pull bobbles" for the lines to run against. A small cleat is attached to the bulwark, to which the line is made fast, each man having two lines, one at each hand. A small pen or "kid" is built against the side of the vessel near each man's fishing berth into which the fish are thrown when taken from the hook and a larger one called the "gurry kid" is built amidships for the reception of the offal from the dressing down tables. Two large butts are lashed to the bulwarks amidships into which the cod livers are thrown and left to "try out" of their own accord, the oil being drawn off now and then as occasion requires from a spigot near the bottom of the butt. Everything is now ready and I commence fishing.

BETTER THAN MEDICINE.

Two or three partly pickled clams are placed on each hook and the leads are then thrown over the side and soon I feel them thump on the bottom. The lines are then drawn in about three feet and made fast to the cleats. Now I stand with "nippers" on my hands and arrayed in my barvil, or long oilcloth apron, and grasping one line in each hand "saw" them back and forth alternately against the pull bobbles, thus striving to entice the finny beauties to take my bait.

Soon a dispatch is sent from the bottom of the Atlantic up along my hempen telegraph that some poor victim has partaken of his last meal and, dropping the other line, I quickly haul in hand over hand and soon have my first fish over the rail and into the kid.

Baiting my hook once more I throw the lead overboard and while it is running down, I grasp the other line and find that this too has secured a prize. Surely this is getting exciting, and as I pulled in our second line, its dripping coils formed graceful circles on the little platform at my feet. I forgot that I was ever an invalid and our whole thought was centered on the one idea of discovering whether I have one or two codfish at the end of that line. It surely draws more steadily and with less flurry than did the first one, and as the lead shoots up through the sparkling water I discover that both hooks are treasure laden, and with a loud and joyful hurrah I lean over the rail.

Talk about pills and boluses to quicken a sluggish circulation! That last haul really did me more good than all the drugs I had taken for the past six months.

LIKE A LARGE SLAUGHTER HOUSE.

The fish were all gathered from the several kids and thrown into the one amidships which adjoins the "gurry kid." The dressing table is then set up against the side of the latter, and, taking our several positions, we are ready for action.

Our thrower, Lowell by name, stands facing the dressing kid and, reaching down, seizes a fish with his left hand, the thumb grasping the under jaw and lifting him, places the back of the fish's neck across the edge of the kid, and with a quick slash of his two edged, dagger shaped knife, cuts a deep and wide gash across the throat. A deft movement of the knife then removes the tongue, which is thrown into a tub near by. He then rips the fish down the belly far enough to expose the entrails and quickly flipping out the liver slides the fish across the table to the "header," who stands ready upon the opposite side. During the remainder of the voyage, I represented that individual, and was indeed thankful that our first catch was not a large one, for I was certainly anything but an expert when I tackled my first fish.

The operation of heading is after this manner: The header is provided with woolen mittens having a thumb and forefinger. As the fish is slid across the table by the thrower, the header seizes it by placing the forefinger of the left hand firmly in the fish's eye and the thumb under the lower jaw. Then with the forefinger of his right hand he grasps the principal intestine where it is joined to the body and with a quick jerk tears it loose; then with a forward scooping motion he removes the whole internal machinery and slides it into the gurry kid. He then, with the left hand still retaining its position, draws the fish forward until it lies upon its back, the back of the neck resting over the edge of the table. He now with his right hand extended grasps the fish by the throat and with a quick push against the ropes with the right hand and at the same instant a sudden downward jerk of the fish's head with the left, the head is broken off and falls into a tub between his feet, while the beheaded fish slides over to the splitter, who stands at the front of the table with the thrower at his left and the header at his right hand.

The splitter now seizes the fish by the nape with the left hand and with a quick slash with his long knife splits him down to the root of the tail. He then places the lip of the knife under the lower end of the backbone and with a sudden forward and at the same time lifting motion, whirls the backbone into the air and the fish is thrown down into the hold to the salter.

The fish are laid up in tiers like stove wood in a shed, the tiers running transversely across the vessel's hold, each layer being thoroughly covered with salt.

When the "sounds" are to be saved the backbones are allowed to drop into a tub at the feet of the splitter until the fish are all dressed. He then empties them upon the table, and with his knife deftly removes the "sound" or air bladder from the inner side of the backbone. The sounds are then scraped and salted in barrels.—Edward Wiggin in Lewiston Journal.

DOXSEE'S PURE CLAM JUICE!

A Natural Medicine, an Agreeable, Not a Nauseous Dose.

"Throw physic to the dogs."
—Shakespeare or Bacon?

INVIGORATING and appetizing if taken cold before eating in the morning. It tones up the system, settles a disordered stomach. A gentle, but sure cathartic. If a matitudinal cocktail must be indulged in, it will counteract its bad effects as to stomach and brain. An absolute and sure preventitive of sea sickness. Its components are closely allied to the gastric juices of the stomach.

An Antidote to Intoxicants.

IF taken regularly, fresh and cold, three times a day, before each meal, it will put the stomach in such a shape that the necessity for stimulants will not be felt, and excessive desire can be toned down to simple moderation. I shall keep Clam Juice constantly on hand to be served FREE, hot or cold, to my customers. Knowing positively from experience that it will do all that is claimed for it above, I will try in every way to promote its use, as it is not my wish to encourage excessive drinking, and if I can discourage it by giving away freely the only known antidote I will only be too glad to do so.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE.

The First Requisite for a Happy Summer Outing and Beneficial Vacation.

Many who have become enfeebled by long confinement and close attention to sedentary occupations, rush away for a short holiday and endeavor by systematic over exertion to make up for the inactivity of the previous months. In regard to this custom Medical Classics says that every year brings sad warnings of its folly in a record of fatalities, while the experience of most practitioners shows yet more clearly that this over strain is followed by prolonged illness. The circulatory and respiratory systems work hand in hand and rebel against any sudden disturbance of their ordinary routine. The danger is always greatest when there is any heart weakness.

In moments of intense nervous excitement the breathing is frequently unconsciously stopped, and the strain upon an enfeebled heart then becomes very severe. Emotional excitement necessarily produces palpitation, and the fixation of the thorax (chest) then adds to the difficulty at the moment when the heart is at its weakest. The prime requisite for a happy summer outing, for a beneficial vacation, is the harmonious setting. Keep cool; don't fret your nerves; strive to keep your temper, and be deliberate. Don't hurry. A vacation in the summer is a good thing—a very good thing—provided you go about it like a sensible being. Let us drop our American way of doing it. It is the pace that is snapping so many strings. Go slow.

Clean and Renew the Water Filter.

At this season of the year the domestic water filter becomes an institution of no little importance. It should be, of course, at all seasons of the year, but summer temperature tends to develop whatever potency for mischief water impurities may possess, while, as a rule, cold tends to avert some of it. American Analyst remarks that it is a very common and a very dangerous assumption that a filter is a filter, and, once set up, may be relied on for an indefinite period. It is much better not to filter water at all than to believe in such a precept. There can be no hesitation in assuming that the result of the purification must be in a ratio to the care bestowed on the filter.

The material in domestic filters should be readily accessible in all their parts for cleaning and renewing, more especially if vegetable or animal charcoal is used; for, although this material may prove satisfactory for a short time as a chemical purifier of water, both chemists and biologists are agreed that its use in the purification of drinking water is attended with much risk; and since the progress of science has revealed the deadly action of living zymotic poisons which occur in contaminated water, another and a much more serious danger through the use of charcoal has shown itself. The commissioners on "rivers' pollution" in England have thus expressed their views: "The property which charcoal possesses in a high degree of favoring the growth of the low forms of organic life is a serious drawback to its use as a filtering medium for potable water."

Our Heads.

Dr. Dight, of the American college of Beirut, Syria, has made an examination of a collection of human skulls which are stored away in an old monastery in the Kedron valley, midway between Jerusalem and the Dead sea, and has carefully compared these skulls with those of the same race at the present day, and finds some significant differences.

The Caucasian skull has during the past thirteen centuries increased its circumference nearly two inches, and has gained in cranial capacity three and a half cubic inches. There has been no increase in width. The brain has gained in height and length—that is to say, there has been a development of the upper and anterior parts of the brain, the parts which we should expect to increase by education and civilization, as they preside over the moral and intellectual functions. The lower portions of the brain, in which the lower or more selfish propensities are centered, and which give breadth to the head, have in the march of the centuries, failed to grow as rapidly as the higher brain centers; hence the non-increase in the width of our skulls.

A New Intoxicant.

A new source of intoxication has been discovered. It is simply dry tea, eaten, of course, before it is steeped. It produces an agreeable effect at first, but indulgence finally causes sleeplessness, disorderly impulses and delirium. Not a few persons have already been found to have contracted this deadly form of the tea habit.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE.

The Royal Origin and Plebeian Usefulness of Refined Manners.

"There are always some people in every community who are superior to some other people. Call it luck or fate or fate or knack, or what you will, the rest is in every city, every country town, something which is called society; there are those who look up, there are those who are looked up to, and hence society is like a convention, a town meeting, a caucus. Did it not have a leader it would relapse into chaos; did it not have a rule it would become communism." Now the rules which have grown up for the proper conduct of society are called by common consent etiquette.

Mrs. John Sherwood, already quoted, explains that the word comes from the old Norman French, and simply means a ticket. When William the Norman came into Saxon England, bringing French manners and refinement with him, he had appended to all his luggage tiquettes, little cards on which was written the royal cipher. So the term grew up with the Anglo Saxon and Norman French people that all that was ceremonious, polite and kingly was ticketed with the royal name. So, while the name has a royal origin, it has a common and plebeian usefulness. We all want to be ticketed with good manners.

The human mind is fond of precedent and likes authority. More than half the world wishes to know what the other half does; what to do, and how to do it most gracefully. To obtain a knowledge of etiquette has been the occupation of a life time of some very clever men in various courts of Europe.

Elegant Stationery.

The correct tints for letter paper, as enumerated by a fashionable stationer, are cream white and mauve, or a delicate shade of blue. Square envelopes are used with paper that folds once. Ladies employ a monogram in gold and colors in the left hand corner, or directly in the center of the sheet. Some, however, prefer the double cipher that is in vogue in England. Men use plain paper or have their crest embossed over an Old English initial.

Incorrect Things.

For a very young lady to issue invitations in her own name.

To send a verbal answer to a written invitation.

To leave cards bent up at one end, or turned down at the corners. It is no longer the fashion to do so.

For a gentleman to call upon a lady unless he has first received permission to do so.

YOUNG FOLKS' COLUMN.

A HALF HOUR'S PLEASANT READING FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Dr. Samuel Johnson and His Favorite Cat "Hodge"—The Great Man Was in the Habit of Buying Oysters for His Feline Pet.

Numbered with distinguished men who have made pets of cats was the good and wise Dr. Samuel Johnson. His favorite cat was named Hodge, and Hodge, consequently, has had his praises written in both prose and poetry by his master's biographers.

DR. JOHNSON AND HIS CAT "HODGE."

Burly and big his books among
Good Samuel Johnson sat,
With frowning brows and wig askew,
His snuff strewn waistcoat far from new;
So stern and menacing his air
That neither "Black Sam" nor the maid
To knock or interrupt him dare—
Yet close beside him, unafraid,
Sat Hodge the cat.

Hodge was well taken care of, for the doctor was in the habit of treating him to oysters, going out to buy these himself, for he thought that if the servants had to do so they might take a dislike to the poor animal for causing them trouble, and therefore "kick him on the sly."

Samuel Johnson was born in 1709, and died in 1784. He was buried at Westminster abbey close by the grave of Garrick. His dictionary, entitling its author to being considered the founder of English lexicography appeared in 1755.

The Crown Prince of Japan.

Of the children of the emperor of Japan only one son and one daughter remain to him. Prince Haru and the Princess Hisa Yoshi Hito, Haru no Miya celebrated his ninth birthday on Aug. 31, 1888, and if he lives will succeed his father on the throne. Princess Hisa is 3 years old, but although empresses have ruled Japan in the early centuries, the line of succession passes from Prince Haru to the cousins of the emperor.

The word Haru in the Japanese language means springtime, and Aki, the name of the last little prince who died, means autumn, so that the imperial brothers, Prince Spring and Prince Autumn, were often spoken of together, and the play upon their names gave court poets many opportunities to turn graceful verses to them. Prince Haru was born in the Tokio palace, and until his second year lived in the imperial nurseries in the Nakayama Yashiki, a black walled place facing the castle moats. After that he was transferred to the palace of the empress dowager, but he now resides with the emperor.

PRINCE HARU.

Prince Haru has the rank of a colonel in the Japanese army, and wears his military uniform and his cap with the gold star all the time, his clothes being dark blue cloth in winter and white duck in summer. He is fond of riding, and, when mounted, the miniature colonel trots along at a fine gait, giving and returning the military salute as he passes an officer or a sentry like a young martinet, says a writer in St. Nicholas, from which the picture here given is a reproduction.

A Short Chapter on "Luck."

We have always had our doubts as to the existence of what is generally termed "luck." Men who, either by favorable circumstances or an unexplained freak of fortune, are always seeming to be favored, are termed "lucky," and many are inclined to covet them its possession. But here is a truthful remark from one of our exchanges, which bears out our theory that "luck" is only a myth, and in reality it is only by our own personal exertions and efforts that we are ever really lucky: "If the boy who exclaims, 'Just my luck!' was truthful he would say, 'Just my laziness!' or 'Just my inattention!'

"Mr. Colden wrote proverbs about 'Luck and Labor.' It would be well for boys to memorize them. Luck is waiting for something to turn up. Labor, with keen eyes and strong will, will turn up something. Luck lies in bed and wishes the postman would bring him news of a legacy. Labor turns out at 6 o'clock, and with busy pen or ringing hammer lays the foundation of a competency. Luck whines, labor whistles. Luck relies on chance, labor on character. Luck strides down to indigence. Labor strides upward to independence."

How It Happened.

A fragile, snow white rosebud, poised on a slender stem,
Grew in a shady corner in the heart of a fairy glen—
"Shine down on me, good sun," it prayed, "oh, let me see your face;
Make me grow strong and lovely and I'll beautify this place."

Down through a rift in the leafage a golden sun beam flew;
"Oh flower of noble purpose, King Sun sends greeting to you!"
Then the grateful snow white rosebud in shyness bowed its head,
And straightway every petal blushed a glowing, ruby red.

—Agnes Maria Mulholland

The Hub.

Oliver Wendell Holmes is credited with giving the name of "The Hub" to Boston in the following:

"Boston state house is the hub of the solar system. You couldn't pry that out of a Boston man if you had the tire of all creation straightened out for a crowbar."

The Use of "Like" and "As."

Discriminate in the use of "like" and "as." Don't say, "Do like I do;" "You must read like James does." Use as. Like is followed by an object only; as does not take a verb in the same construction. As is followed by a verb, expressed or understood.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP.

The Dominical Letter—The Golden Number—Why So Named.

The Dominical letter is the letter which in our almanacs marks Sunday (dies Domini). In the calendar the 1st of January is always denoted by A, and the Dominical letter is that which denotes the first Sunday, and except in leap year, all other Sundays of the year. In leap year there are two Dominical letters, the first for the Sundays between Jan. 1 and Feb. 29, the second for the other Sundays of the year, the interpolation being postponed until the end of February instead of being made at the beginning of the year. We do not know who invented the Dominical letter; perhaps Dionysius Exiguus, who lived A. D. 500, and devised the Dionysian or common era, dating it from the time of Christ. The Dominical letters are based on the Roman nundinal letters; the Roman market day happened every ninth day. The Christian adopted the Jewish week, and necessarily the nundinal letters fell into disuse among them. There are no year letters; the golden numbers represent the number of the year in the lunar cycle of nineteen years; at the end of that cycle the moon has her changes on the same day of the solar year and month on which she had them nineteen years previously. The numbers of this cycle are of great use in determining Easter, and got their name by being written in the calendar in letters of gold.

British Divorce Statistics.

The return of divorce suits and judicial separations, asked for by Mr. Gladstone last December and just published, gives a series of figures extending from 1858 to the end of 1887. Of course no comments are made, only the bare numerical statement is printed, but the figures speak eloquently enough. Altogether, during the thirty years over which the record extends, there were 2,734 petitions for judicial separations and 10,501 for divorce. Of the former, rather more than one-third were successful and about one-eighth were dismissed; the rest, that is to say, more than half, being arranged privately. A much larger part of the divorce cases resulted successfully, the number of decrees pronounced being 7,321, an average of 206 per year, and nearly three-quarters of the number of petitions. About 2,428 cases never came to a hearing, but of those which were brought into court only 812, or one-thirteenth of the total, were dismissed. The queen's proctor intervened in 294 cases, four times out of five with the result of a reversal of the decree. But such general summaries give a very poor idea of the actual state of things which this striking return reveals. If the various statistics are studied carefully it is at once obvious how very greatly the number of petitions has increased in recent years.

The Oyster in Mud.

Dr. A. Oemler, an authority on the oyster, who recently read a paper on the subject before the Georgia Historical society, says: "Mud is the most formidable enemy of the oyster. Even if the water which passes through its gills or lungs is muddy, the little creature dies from asphyxia or suffocation. If, in its search for the homestead, upon which its life depends, it encounters a film of mud the thickness of a sheet of writing paper, its fine, soft organs of locomotion being inadequate to free it from the engulfing medium, its course is run. A large oyster may be deposited upon a muddy bottom and survive, provided the mud be of sufficient consistency to sustain its weight so that its bill may reach high enough above the bottom of the animal to draw clean water through its gills for the purification of its blood, and into its mouth for its support."

Castle Williams.

Castle Williams, not William, is on the western extremity of Governor's island in New York harbor. It looks like a tower, or like a cheese box that isn't on a raft. Fort Lafayette is on an island in the Narrows, under the bluff on which Fort Hamilton stands. Castle Williams was named after Col. Jonathan Williams, who was first commandant of West Point in 1802, engineer in chief of the army in 1805, and died in 1815. He built most of the inner fortifications of New York harbor, including Fort Columbus and Castle Williams, on Governor's island, and Fort Clinton, now Castle Garden.

Carpenter's Great Painting.

When Carpenter painted the picture of the deathbed of Lincoln the figure of Andrew Johnson was one of those gathered about the couch, and this was as it should be, for he was really there with the members of the cabinet and others. Before the picture was quite finished, however, the feeling in the north had grown so bitter against Johnson that the artist feared lest the popularity of the picture would be injured by the appearance in it of the then chief executive. He therefore erased President Johnson and inserted Schuyler Colfax in his stead, although Colfax was not really present at the death of Lincoln.

Death of Charles XII.

Charles XII of Sweden was killed at the siege of Frederickshall, Dec. 11, 1718. It is not certainly known how he was killed, or by whom. He was found during the seige leaning against a parapet, as if examining the works, his hand on his sword and a prayer book in his pocket. It is said that he was killed by a cannon shot, but it is now generally supposed that he was killed by a pistol shot from the hands of a traitorous soldier. The life of Charles XII is more curious than that of any other sovereign.

From Gate to Horn.

The Golden Gate connects San Francisco bay with the Pacific ocean. The Golden Horn is the curved inlet of the Bosphorus forming a considerable part of the harbor of Constantinople. To go from the Golden Gate to the Golden Horn, the route is over the Pacific ocean, Magellan straits, Atlantic ocean, Straits of Gibraltar, Mediterranean sea, Grecian Archipelago, Straits of Dardanelles, Sea of Marmora and into the Bosphorus. The Golden Horn is so called from its curved shape, and is large enough to float 1,000 ships at one time.

Longevity.

The average age at which mankind die is now forty years, and is steadily on the increase. The United States, despite the talk about the rapidity with which the Americans wear themselves out, forges ahead of every other nation on earth in respect to the longevity of its citizens, fifty-five years being the average here. Of all the nations of Europe Russia is the most of a favorite with the death angel.

An Adage.

"Never look a gift horse in the mouth," is a saying of Butler's in Hudibras. A similar sentiment comes from Rabelais and St. Jerome. The signification is, never criticise what is done for you as a personal favor.

The First Cent.

The first American cent was struck off and circulated in 1796. Previous to this date several patterns had been struck off, but they were never circulated.

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is simmered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them?

They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine—of health.

Free from alcohol and opium; composed of expensive herbs and roots, with a fine, delicate flavoring.

Mrs. Jennness Miller.

Mrs. Annie Jennness Miller, the dress reformer, has been engaged by the ladies of the Episcopal church to deliver a course of two lectures early in September. The first of the two lectures will be delivered to the ladies only, the second to both ladies and gentlemen.

Of this lady the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette says:

"And at this juncture, when the question, Shall the corset and bustle go? is discussed as seriously as the higher education and the mind cure and the ballot by the citizenesses of the United States, there comes a radiant woman to our city to tell us all about it; and standing before us in superb poses, and in corsetless and bustleless figure, will let us see for ourselves just how an emancipated female looks. Of course it goes without telling that this woman is emancipated in mind as well; that she comes of grand old stock; has the finest pedigree America furnishes; that every aid of family, wealth, and culture that Boston bequeaths to her favored children are hers; that she has the oratorical and persuasive eloquence of conviction that made her Kinsman, Wendell Phillips, the magical logician of sentiment; she has the literary and artistic capabilities of her kinsman, Oliver Wendell Holmes; she has wealth, health, beauty, heredity, social pre-eminence, happy domestic relations in fact, she had every feminine advantage except the corset. And she glories in it all, even the disadvantage."

Thirty-Sixth Marriage Anniversary.

On Wednesday July 31st, the sons and daughters, grandsons and granddaughters and immediate friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. Schweinfarth, celebrated their thirty-sixth marriage anniversary, on the delightful and beautiful farm of their son, Herman, ten miles northwest of Marion. All kinds of out door games were indulged in, also vocal and instrumental music. A most elegant dinner was spread under the beautiful shade trees, a regular old fashioned love feast, everything that heart could wish for was spread before them. After dining upon the beautiful green, the various amusements, such as promenading, romping, swinging and target shooting, until old Sol was invisible in the western sky, after which they returned home to this city to the Reverend's commodius residence on north Main street, and surprised them by presenting them with a handsome silk plush rocker, as a token of their esteem to daily remind them of the happy occasion.

Progress.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

Agosta.

Everything is quiet and we are awaiting the genial summer rain, which gives us life and energy.

Everything is social with the young folks now. We would say keep in out of the night air as this is the unhealthiest month of the year.

The waterroom is now running night and day.

Our grain fields will average through this section 25 bushels per acre. The best crop we have had for some 6 or 7 years.

A social was given at the residence of Mr. Pacer, one and one-half miles northeast of here, last Saturday evening. A very enjoyable time was had at this pleasant home. Ice cream, cake and berries were placed before them, to the delight of every person, and no one could say but what they had an excellent supper.

Several gentlemen visitors were seen standing near the depot at daybreak Sunday morning. We infer that they walked in, and being quite weary, sought the depot porch to repose and slumber. You can't withstand this and have good health when you are 32 years old.

We are in no anticipation of a young man from a distance to visit our village soon and perhaps carry off one of our fair daughters; who knows?

Henry Hoechstetter, of Marion, is visiting his mother and friends this week. Henry relishes his visits to his home, much, and we think him to have an attraction other than that within this community.

W. F. Eiland, of DeGraff, spent Sunday with his mother. Will seems to be enjoying good health.

Miss Ollie Tuttle is quite poorly at present with an attack of malarial fever.

Howard Tangent and Harry Hill spent Sunday with us. They are located in Marion.

We had quite a disorderly crowd in town Monday evening, yet we got through without making any arrests or having any fighting.

W. T. Dutton and wife are spending this week with relatives south of Marion.

The building of a new fence about the school house will take place soon. We understand it is to be plank.

Will Schultz, of Cochranton, is doing some painting for G. H. Dutton.

Two young men left our village horseback on Sunday morning about 8 o'clock. About an hour later the horses were seen returning riderless. The people began conjecturing about the riders when to their surprise they made their appearance, looking as though they had taken some three or four degrees in the Jolly Haymakers' lodge. But upon inquiry, it was learned that the little boys were riding a race and the young horses ran into the ditch and suddenly stopped, and thus laid the occupants of their saddles beside the fence. Fortunately neither of the boys were hurt and Lottie says he was just ten feet ahead when he fell, but Gongaway was soon on the spot, so neither hung.

O. W. Beckley has purchased some lots on which the old Berrell house stands and will commence building soon.

Montrose Wilkins was circulating among his many friends this week. He left for Marion on Tuesday.

J. D. Brady is making some repairs about our sidewalks.

Ed Manley, of Essex, was in our village Tuesday last.

We understand that there will be no more loafing within the depot at DeGraff. Some two or three boys pleasured themselves in another's board's discontent, and soon found Marquis of Queensbury rules placed conspicuously. The boys call themselves the "pumpkin raiders," and they now all stand aloof from the corpse within the wailing room.

Several of our young men have this week been engaged in making hay.

Miss Nina Carter, of Indianapolis, is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Crue, this week.

August 1st. Mohan.

Cupid's Queer Pranks.

The peculiar case of a woman 60 years of age seeking information as how to proceed to secure a divorce from a husband of the same age, came before 'Squire Payne today. The aged couple, as related by the woman, had pulled together for thirty eight years, and all had gone on smoothly until recently, when a fair-haired maiden of 18 summers crept into the family circle and stole the old man's heart. The injured lady thinks nothing but a divorce will soothe her wounded feelings, and the object of her visit to the 'Squire was to see about "drawin' up the papers."

The aged couple live a few miles northeast of Marion, and it is hoped there may soon be rifts in the clouds that have obscured their domestic happiness, and that all may be amicably settled.

The Clippers Defeated.

The game of ball Thursday, between the Clippers of this city, and the Ashland nine resulted in the defeat of the home team, the score standing 11 to 16. A good sized crowd was present at the Prendergast grounds, but the game was devoid of any exciting features up to the sixth inning. At that point the local nine tied the visitors' score of 11, and there was some excitement, but with the progress of the game the boys were left with this score, while the Ashlands ran theirs up to 18. The Clippers played about their usual game. Much kicking was indulged in on both sides, which necessitated a change of umpire in the eighth inning. Bishop and Montgomery did the heavy work up to the eighth inning, when Montgomery was disabled, and Bishop went behind the bat, Andy McLaughlin pitching.

—It is reported that two Prospect females reveled under the influence of wine, and did other disgraceful things, in this city Thursday night.

CAUTION

W. L. Douglas' name and the price are stamped on the bottom of all Shoes advertised by him before leaving his factory; this protects the wearers against high prices and inferior goods. If your dealer does not keep the style or kind you want, or offers you shoes without W. L. Douglas' name and price stamped on them, and says they are just as good, do not be deceived thereby, but send direct to the Factory for you can get what you want by return mail, postage paid. Dealers make more profit on unknown shoes that are not warranted by anybody; therefore do not be induced to buy shoes that have no reputation. Buy only those that have W. L. Douglas' name and the price stamped on the bottom, and you are sure to get full value for your money. Thousands of dollars are saved annually in this country by the wearers of W. L. Douglas' Shoes. In ordering by mail state whether you want Congress, Button or Lace, London cap toe, plain French toe, or narrow cap toe, and be sure to give size and width you wear. I can fit any foot that is not deformed, as my shoes are made in a great variety of widths, sizes and half sizes. I guarantee a fit, prompt delivery and perfect satisfaction or money refunded upon return of the shoes in good condition.
